Veridian Credit Union uses an Associate Director program as part of its Board succession and recruitment process. The program will prepare future Directors by providing an opportunity for involvement in Board and Committee activities and educational opportunities. The duties of an Associate Director on the Veridian Credit Union Board are the same as that of a Director, except for voting in board meetings, and include collaboration in strategic planning, policy determination, active participation in meetings, acting as an ambassador of the credit union, and continuous education that contributes to the effectiveness of the Associate Director role.

Guidelines

I. Candidates for the Associate Director program will apply, and upon meeting the election requirements will be presented to the membership for a vote.

B. An Associate Director is a non-voting member of the Board of Directors.

C. An Associate Director is a voting member of any committee in which they serve.

D. The Associate Director is expected to attend, participate, and provide valuable input at all meetings of the Board and its committees.

E. The term of an Associate Director is 3 years with a term limit of two.

- I. The Board Chair may assign a Director to serve as a mentor to an Associate Director.

J. Associate Directors will have a $6,000 educational budget to be used for specific education opportunities.

K. If a resignation occurs mid-term from the Associate Director program, one of these two scenarios will occur:

1. If the pool of Associate Directors is empty, the Board will replace an Associate Director using a similar process to replacing a Board member or an open call for Associate Directors will commence.

2. If the pool of Associate Directors has 1-2 other individuals who are still within 1 or more years of their term, the Board will not fill the position, rather it will be filled by membership vote at the next election of Associate Directors during the Annual Meeting.

II. After satisfying pre-requisites, the Associate Director will be allowed to run in the general election of the Board of Directors. These pre-requisites are: successfully serving as an Associate Director for 2 years and being approved by the Nominating Committee after the review of the Associate Director's overall Board service and the results of peer-to-peer evaluations.
